

THE FAMILY REFORMATION PROJECT

"A Healthy Family For Everyone."

HELLO EVERYONE!

We are thrilled to unveil our first-ever newsletter! Our global Mission at The F.R.P. is to restore families back to GOD's original design, shaping culture from the inside out. Culture flows downstream from family, so our work is vital to having a healthy society. Our framework is built on three core elements: The design of family from a Biblical worldview; The principles of emotional intelligence; and The coach approach to family. Our newsletters will share stories of transformed lives, inspiration, and our ongoing efforts to help others realize GOD's design for families as well as updates on our own family.

We hope these stories will ignite a fire in your heart, inspiring you to walk closely with God for the best possible relationships with your family and those you may serve. Join us on this journey of restoration and renewal!

MINISTRY UPDATES

This past quarter has been brimming with opportunities to share about God's design for family. Doors have opened for connecting with others, teaching, and growing and continuing work with the ministry.

TEACHING

In the realm of teaching, Randy and Lesli continue to have full coaching schedules with individuals as well as married couples and those seeking pre-marital coaching.

We recently hosted two Family Legacy Conferences in Peoria, AZ, and Merrillville, IN. A particularly touching moment was witnessing the overwhelming love of God as a young boy beamed with glee while his family surrounded him, speaking the characteristics of God that they saw in him.

Our Family School is currently in its 5th cycle, equipping individual families and family coaches for greater global impact.

Lesli had the honor of speaking at the Deborah Arise women's conference in Peoria, AZ.

Additionally, Randy is teaching university-level classes focused on leadership and cultural transformation.

CONNECTING WITH OTHERS

Last quarter, we were blessed with numerous opportunities to connect with local and distant communities.

We were privileged to impact our local government leaders and families at the Mayor's Prayer Breakfast. Additionally, God graciously connected us with Kingdom Ecosystems in Dallas, TX, a community that empowers leaders to maximize their impact. In our experience, they have been true collaborators in the Kingdom.

We were also honored to be invited to represent the Family Sphere at the GSF-Global Strategy Forum, in conjunction with the WEA-World Evangelical Alliance, contributing to shaping the global strategy for the reformation of the family.

Another trip to Dallas is coming up! We will be joining Kingdom Ecosystems at Dallas Baptist University for the Lions Den Event. This is an opportunity to speak with investors and donors.

GROWING & CONTINUING MINISTRY

We've reached several milestones recently! The first draft of the German translation of the book, workbook, and e-course is complete, and we've scheduled a launch for this September.

In February, we launched "House Fires!" an expression of KHOP (Kingdom House Of Prayer). This expression focuses on in-home prayer and worship nights providing a space for encountering God, worship, and fellowship.

Our podcast, "Transforming Families with Randy and Lesli," recently hit its 100th episode. We're immensely grateful to our supporters, production team, and the many incredible guests and family experts who have made this possible! The podcast is now reaching 28 nations and over 6,000 listeners, which is incredibly encouraging and demonstrates a real hunger for family restoration.

TESTIMONIALS

THE SHERWOOD HOUSE

"Here at the Sherwood house, we've been actively integrating EQ protocols into Luke's weekly schedule. These sessions focus on personal investigation, empathy, recognizing and working through offense, understanding powerful versus powerless mindsets, distinguishing between facts and stories, speaking the truth in love, and learning to love others without attachments.

The impact of this EQ stuff can be so transformative if we allow it to be. I've been repeatedly challenged and humbled in this process, especially as I strive to model these principles for Luke. When I falter and my human nature takes over, I'm confronted with the question: Am I truly living it to give it (mainly to and for my son)? When my humanness gets in the way and I mess up, what do I do?

Recently, during Luke's bath time, I sobbed as I confessed to him my lack of self-governance with my emotions (toward a complete stranger in Luke's presence). I was humbled as I looked into Luke's heavenly eyes, confessed my sin, and asked for his forgiveness. Of course, he was gracious and forgave me. I'm humbled even more knowing that Luke will be my greatest teacher. I affectionately refer to him as Professor Luke to which he smiles at me. It doesn't matter that I'm the adult, the parent... I also humbly accept my position as a student. I know Luke has so much to teach me and show me about God (love), myself, and others. Lord, may I never be too prideful to sit before my son and be his greatest student (or even his teacher's pet!).

We intend to homeschool Luke so this learning for him is as much learning and habit-forming for us. We build this learning into our morning routines after we take care of Moo (our kitty cat), steward our bodies together through exercise (Luke's push-ups are the best!), and before we eat lunch. Often, the EQ "lessons" are 5-10 minutes in length while Luke is climbing on his tower or running around (can't expect much more from a 19-month-old!).

We look forward to all the lessons on math, science, reading, and history but this has been a great way to build the healthy habit of teaching him the things that truly matter for life lived as God designed!

This stuff can be absorbed by anyone, no matter their age. We know Luke is learning (right alongside us we'll add!) even as he's yelling for Frankie, his stuffed fox! Haha...toddlers are awesome! He is awesome and we know he'll be even more awesome for knowing this work; from living this work so he can give it to others."
